In OmaStadi the Helsinki of dreams is created together

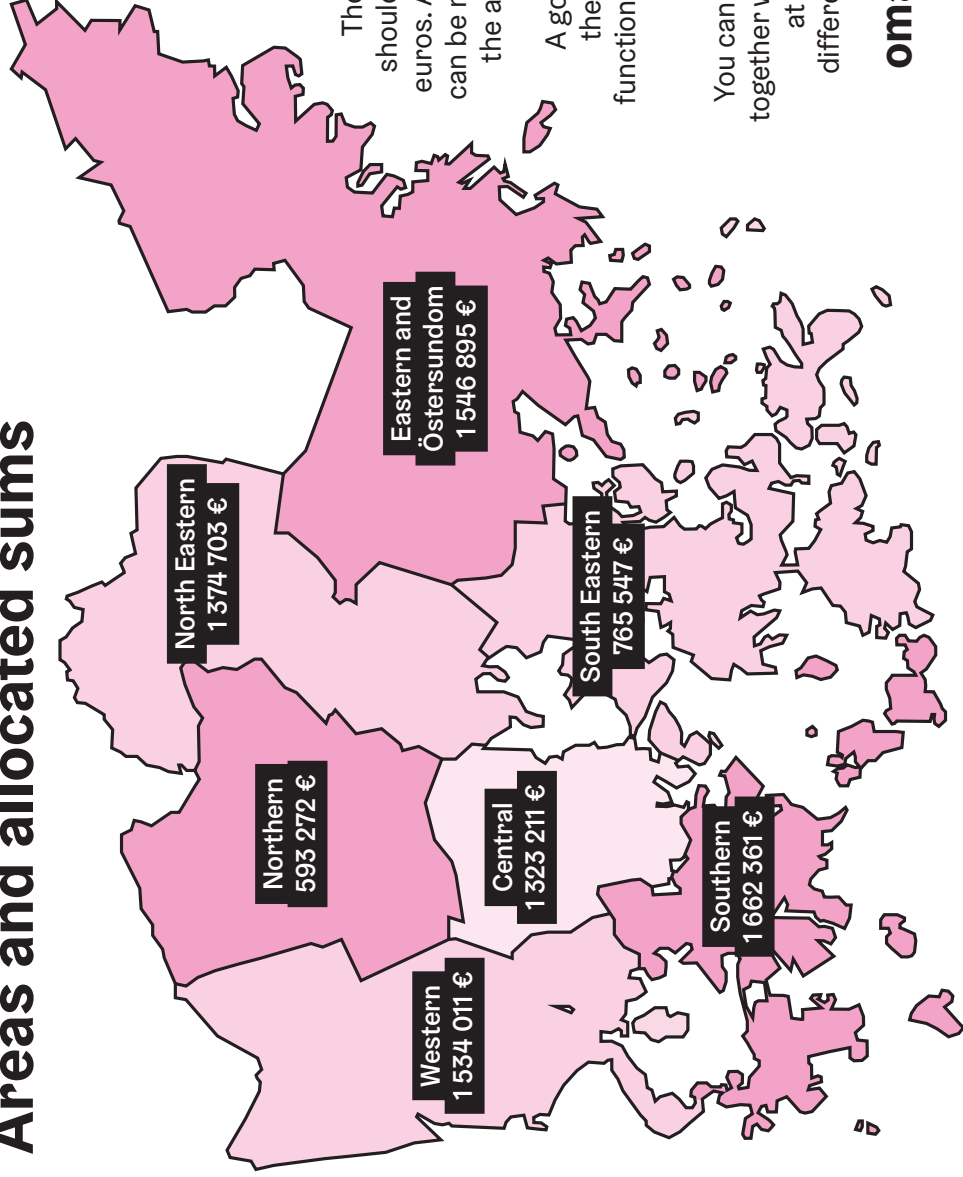

OmaStadi is Helsinki's way of executing participatory budgeting. This means that residents can ideate and vote on proposals for their neighborhoods. The City of Helsinki uses 8,8 million euros to execute the proposals.

The proposal's budget should be at least 35,000 euros. A proposal's budget can be no more than half of the area's entire budget.

A good proposal makes the city more pleasant, functional, and more fun for all of us.

You can come up with ideas together with other residents at events organized in different parts of the city.
